TWELVE PAGES—THREE CENTS

Motorman Of Train Is Held For Questioning In Chicago 'L' Wreck

Chicago, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Motorman Van R. Grooms was held in technical custody tonight while representatives of city, state and federal governments investigated the most disastrous wreck in the history of Chicago's elevated railroad.

RUSSIA SPARES NAZI ENGINEER; GETS 10 YEARS

Death Sentence Is Commuted After Protest

Six Russians Shot For Part In Mine Sabotage

Moscow, Nov. 25.—(P)—Russia tonight spared the life of a German engineer, Emil I. Sticking, who was sentenced to death for plotting against the Soviet regime and killing 14 miners in acts of sabotage.

The central executive committee in terse announcement disclosed that Sticking's sentence had been commuted to ten years' imprisonment after the German embassy had made repeated protests in the case.

Sticking and eight Russians were sentenced to death Nov. 22 after all admitted total or partial guilt in plotting to wreck the great Kamenovka coal mines in western Siberia.

The sentences of two of the Russians also were commuted to ten years.

The C. E. C. also disclosed that the other condemned men had been shot by firing squads.

"It was found possible," the announcement read, "to reduce the sentences of Sticking, Leonenko and Kozlenko to ten years' imprisonment, but the others already were shot."

The German embassy, which had made a "cause celebre" of the death sentence of Sticking, expressed immense relief and pleasure tonight.

Sticking was the first foreign engineer to receive such a sentence in the history of the exploited anti-Soviet plot trials.

He admitted full guilt on the charges against him, but in a final plea for clemency said "I openly showed it wasn't myself who took the road to wreckage. I showed who led me down this road. I have not concealed anything."

This declaration, Soviet observers said, referred to the German consul at Novosibirsk whom Sticking accused in the Judges' Chamber.

Sticking, termed by Prosecutor Roginsky a "wrecking specialist," was convicted on four counts, including one alleging he engineered a gas explosion in the Kamenovka mines which killed 14 workers.

He was further convicted of having maintained a direct connection "with the secret service of one foreign state."

UNIONS BLOCK ALASKA BOUND RELIEF SHIPS

Employee Selection Methods Tie-Up Cargoes

Alaska Organization Has Rotation Hiring System

San Francisco, Nov. 25.—(P)—A jurisdictional difference between two unions today blocked completion of government efforts to speed emergency relief ships to strike-bound Alaska.

Coincidentally peace negotiations started again between coastwise shippers and one of the striking west coast unions.

The union hitch developed shortly after Col. O. F. Olson, manager of the government-owned Alaska railroad, detailed plans to move fresh food, passengers and general cargo to the northern territory aboard ships chartered by the authority of President Roosevelt.

Olson said the International Longshoremen's Union declined to sign a working agreement pending an adjustment of two different methods of hiring stevedores involved.

He explained the Federal Government Employees Union, which works the Alaskan piers, utilized the seniority system in assigning jobs to individuals. The I. L. A. uses the rotation system to distribute the work equitably and asked adoption of this method in Alaska during the emergency.

Both unions are A. F. of L. affiliates.

Olson put the matter up to the Alaska union and postponed the signing of working agreements pending a decision.

The government representative said he had leased the fishing steamer Arctic here and would have the services of two other ships during the strike emergency.

The Arctic, which has aboard a cargo of tinned salmon and gear, is to be unloaded by the I. L. A. here and sent to Seattle within three days. There it will load fresh food, meat, flour and mail and then sail for Seward, 12 days away.

The bureau of Indian affairs ship boxer, operating under the Olson program, is to leave Seattle in four or five days with supplies to Alaska ports where the food shortage is most acute—particularly Sitka, Cordova, Unalakleet and Akutan.

A third ship is to be chartered in Seattle.

Olson said the ships would carry passengers as well as regular cargo and would operate under the charter agreement for the duration of the emergency.

Dock workers in Le Havre, France, proclaiming "our solidarity with the American dock strikers," refused to unload freight from the United States liner Washington, which was held up.

That seedtime follows harvest, God, we thank Thee,
That crops grow tall upon our yellow plains;
That drift of sunlight on our fields in summer
Is broken always by the promised rains;
For courts whose doors stand wide in gallant justice,
For schools that teach no prejudice, no ranks;
For opportunity, for hope, for freedom—
Once more, dear God, for these we bring our thanks.

Oh, we are grateful as the year is ending,
That smoke blows high and dark against the sky—
A post of clouds to lead us back to Canaan,
A promise now of labor by and by;
Not any man, dear God, would ever ask for bounty
Nor seek relief if he had work to do,
So give us toil, hard toil, high toil, we beg Thee,
We would be brave, industrious, and true!

New Legislation To Commitments On Set Up AAA Control Arms Limitation Now Being Drafted

Farm Organization Would Accomplish Aims Of Regulation

Washington, Nov. 25.—(P)—Proposals for new legislation to accomplish production-control aims of AAA and accompanying acts were said in informed quarters today to be already drafted in tentative form by one of the powerful farm organizations.

At the same time forecasts were freely made at the department of agriculture that the administration would recommend to congress reenactment of the Jones-Costigan sugar control bill.

The lead in shaping up production-control recommendations was said to have been taken by the American Farm Bureau Federation in line with repeated public declarations by its President, Edward A. O'Neal, that farmers never would be thoroughly satisfied with any agricultural program which did not provide effective guards against overproduction and low prices.

Belief the soil conservation program needs revision and strengthening was expressed by Secretary Wallace today in a statement at Atlanta.

"The soil program still is in its infancy and necessarily will need revision and strengthening," he said, adding, "so far, however, it has proved an effective substitute for the AAA."

Recommendations said to be contemplated by the Farm Bureau included substitutes for the outlawed AAA wheat program, the Bankhead cotton control act, the War Reliance act and the Warren potato act. The latter three were repealed by congress as a result of the supreme court decision in the Hoosac Mills case invalidating the AAA processing taxes.

A substitute for the AAA corn-hog program also was under consideration by the Farm group, but involved a number of difficulties.

Inasmuch as the military would not take kindly to suggestions that the number of officers be cut, military economies in South America would have to be made at the expense of enlisted personnel or equipment, observers say.

BENDIX STRIKE ENDS; WORKERS, COMPANY AGREE

Union And Corporation Draft 7 Point Compromise

Settlement Hailed As Victory For Both Sides

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 25.—(P)—The nine-day "sit down" strike and lockout at the plant of the Bendix Corporation ended here tonight with the acceptance by the company and the union of a seven point agreement by which employees will be back at their jobs by Monday morning.

Announcement of the settlement of the dispute over complete unionization of the factory came after several days of conferences and was hailed by Homer Martin of Detroit, international president of the United Automobile Workers of America, as a "major victory for both the workers in the Automobile Industry and the manufacturers."

The seven points in the agreement were:

1. All employees shall be back at their jobs not later than next Monday morning.

2. The company recognizes Local Union No. 9, United Automobile Workers, as the bargaining agent for its membership and all other employees who choose to avail themselves of its service. The company shall negotiate with the Local Union on all matters of rates of pay, hours and conditions of employment and shall not agree with any other group with respect to such matters without also having reached an agreement on the same matters with the Local Union.

3. The company shall cooperate with Local Union No. 9 by agreeing to take back all of the employees on the rolls as of Nov. 16 without discrimination or loss of seniority rights as far as practicable to the extent there are jobs for them.

4. There shall be established a board of review to which any member of the union or any employee who secures consent of the executive board of Local Union No. 9, who is dissatisfied with the decision of the personnel director, may take his complaint.

This board will consist of three members of Local Union No. 9 who are not concerned with the presenting of complaints and three members of the executive staff of the company not connected with the shop management.

5. Men laid off by reason of reduction of forces shall be given at least one day's notice in advance of such lay-off.

6. Employees notified to report for work when no work is available shall be provided with a minimum of two hours employment instead of one hour as in the past.

7. In order to carry out the spirit and intent of the agreement the management agrees to cooperate with Local Union No. 9 in jointly considering all proposals which may be submitted by the union to the management after resumption of work.

The dispute over unionization of the plant came to a head on Nov. 17 when company officials ordered all work halted.

Fascist Planes Bomb Madrid Model Prison And Demolish Homes

Madrid, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Four insurgent bombing planes darted over Madrid today, spat machine gun bullets on Socialist lines, bombed the Model Prison, and soared away before Madrid planes had time to give combat.

Bombs were dumped on the military hygiene and sanitation building. Many were wounded when one of the aerial bombs wrecked a two-story house in Gusman El Bueno street.

Other explosive bombs hit the Lozoya water reservoir, between Bravo Murillo and Santa Engracia streets, and the North Station.

Another house on Francisco Ricci street was blasted.

Twelve government planes took the air after the raid and patrolled the skies against a return visit of the enemy ships which concentrated their machine gun fire on Socialist troops manning barricades on the northwestern and western edges of Madrid.

An empty cartridge case crashed through the glass roof of a passageway between the garage and chauffeurs' quarters of the American embassy.

Tonight a heavily guarded motor caravan was being assembled to carry the 55 Americans scheduled to leave the American embassy before day-break Thursday for Valencia.

While the embassy staff completed last minute preparations for the evacuation, Madrid officials voiced suspicions some other embassies were violating the right of asylum.

A close, if courteous, watch was set on most missions, including the British where residents were "invited" to show their identification papers before entering the grounds after dark.

The embassy guard watches were established after semi-official allegations that the German embassy building seized and sealed with the Italian embassy the day before, had been a "veritable fortress."

The officials said militia had seized in the German building 21 revolvers, 12 shotguns, one anti-aircraft piece, seven rifles, one bomb thrower, three cases of hand grenades, one case of shell fuses and four cutlasses.

Subsequent investigation, it was said, showed the former embassy "sheltered refugees storing arms and ammunition."

There were 45 Spaniards arrested in the building, but officials said they believed some others, including the former Marquessa de Urduliz, the former Countess de Mollis, apparently had reached refugees in other embassies.

The defense junta tonight was disturbed by the activities of a fleet of "ghost cars" which roam the city at night and snipe at militia cars.

Outside Madrid meanwhile, the international column of anti-Fascists fought with bombs to the wall to make good their promise to drive their foes from the hospital clinic building of University City within two days.

A government surprise attack on the Casa de Campo in the morning broke a concentration of insurgent troops "for a final assault on Madrid," the government announced.

Japan And Germany Sign Pact Directed Against Communism
Berlin, Nov. 25.—(P)—Japan and Germany today signed a pact directed against communism throughout the world and pointed specifically to the Communist International.

Japan was brought into the European bloc of authoritarian powers lined up against the spread of Bolshevism. (Austria) Hungary and Italy also are supporting anti-communist campaigns.

The Japanese-German agreement signed today charged directly that the activities of the Communist International from Moscow "threatened world peace" and asserted future communist proselyting would not be tolerated by either of the signatories.

Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels over the radio tonight asserted the alliance was directed solely against the Moscow Internationale and against any state.

"It was not only the perfect right of Japan and Germany to sign this treaty," he said, "it was a political moral duty."

(In Tokyo, the foreign office expressed similar views, also asserting the pact was not directed against any specific state.)

The alliance, long reported to have been in effect, bound Japan and Germany for five years to:

1. Consult on co-operative anti-communist moves.

2. Invite third parties to join them.

3. Exchange police data on the subject.

4. Invoke stiff penalties for internal agitators and

5. Set up a permanent Japanese-German commission.

Representatives of all diplomatic missions in Berlin were invited to witness the signing of the agreement by Japanese Ambassador Kintomo Musahoko and by Joachim von Ribbentrop, German ambassador to Great Britain, the right hand man of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler on foreign affairs.

Foreign diplomats poring over the text of the agreement tonight attached great significance to the lack of geographical limitations of the pact.

If the Komintern should carry activities into China or into Spain or anywhere, it was asserted, under the terms of the document Japan and Germany would feel themselves free to act jointly.

Immediately after signing the agreement, Von Ribbentrop, who will be a member of the permanent commission left to talk things over with Chancellor Hitler in Berchtesgaden.

JOSEPH STALIN APPROVES NEW MILITARY POST

Opens Address To Congress With Declaration

Observers Believe New Department To Increase Arms

Moscow, Nov. 25.—(P)—The usually taciturn Joseph Stalin today approved a new and separate military industry commissariat, which led informed observers to believe he wished to accelerate Russian armament in preparation for war.

The idea was the only one accepted of the 100,000 suggestions offered by the new constitution which Stalin formally presented for ratification by the Eighth All-Union Congress of Soviets.

Stalin, in opening the congress in the Kremlin, delivered his second public address in history, speaking for two hours and 15 minutes.

The new ministry, Stalin said, would be evolved from the heavy industry commissariats which have been in charge of armaments.

"I think it is necessary to organize such a commissariat," he said.

The major part of Stalin's speech, as secretary-general of the Communist party, was devoted to an attack on Fascism and assurance that the Communist party would continue to be the only party in Russia.

Speaking on the day when an anti-Communist agreement between Germany and Japan was announced in Berlin, Stalin told the congress the new constitution gave moral support to all those fighting Fascism.

As for Germany and her press, he said, when they find the facts do not jibe with their own theories, they stymie discard the facts. The new constitution, he declared, will come in based on facts, not promises.

Comparing the Russia of 1924 when the existing constitution was adopted with the Russia of today, Stalin said capitalism was no more, man no longer exploited man, unemployment didn't exist, socialism had completely captured the nation and there were 400,000 tractors in operation.

"Now we have only the workers and the intelligentsia," he said.

The Communist leader, appearing in excellent health, received a tumultuous 20-minute ovation when he entered the Kremlin building to address the 2,033 delegates and 314 consulting delegates.

The American charge d'affaires, Loy W. Henderson, sat in one of the honor boxes reserved for diplomats above the rostrum.

On the platform with Stalin were L. M. Kaganovich, commissar of land transport; Klementi P. Voroshilov, commissar of defense; G. K. Ordjnikidze, commissar of heavy industry, and many other high Russian officials, many of whom were semi-military attire.

The officers rushed out to question a strange plot who made a perfect landing in dense fog on the war office property. To their amazement the famous American flier stepped from the plane.

Greatest secrecy was maintained at Sealand, while the British officers entertained their distinguished visitor. News of Lindbergh's whereabouts was not made known for nearly 24 hours, after a night and day of near alarm from absence of any report of the Colonel.

After the plane was sheeled into a hangar, Captain Norton and a group of fellow-officers at the airfield were hosts to Lindbergh at dinner.

The Colonel had hoped to resume his flight today but bad weather kept him on the ground. It was uncertain whether he would drive by automobile to his home, "Sevenoaks," in Kent, tonight, or remain until tomorrow.

"He's a welcome visitor," said Captain Norton. "He knows all about the game."

Sealand airfield has been host to other famous fliers. Post and Gatty landed there after crossing the Atlantic on their round-the-world flight in 1931.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Dugger were local callers yesterday from Franklin,

Federation Of Labor Reaffirms Non-Partisan Political Policy
Tampa, Fla., Nov. 25.—(P)—The American Federation of Labor convention today shouted down proposals the P. A. T. lead an independent labor party, and reaffirmed its well-established non-partisan political policy.

By an overwhelming vote the delegates decided "nothing has happened since the last convention to justify any change" in this policy—adopted with the Federation's formation 56 years ago.

Meantime, talk of peace with John L. Lewis' rebel unions all but vanished when Charles P. Howard, president of the Typographical Union, said he would try to bring additional A. F. of L. unions into the rebel ranks.

Howard is secretary of Lewis' committee for Industrial Organization.

George M. Harrison, president of the Railway Clerks and chairman of the Federation's peace committee, had explored the possibilities of a settlement with Max Zaritsky, president of the United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers and a member of Lewis' rebel committee.

Kill Three Bandits In Daring Hold-Up

Gary, Ind., Nov. 25.—(P)—Three bandits were killed and a fourth captured tonight as police foiled a hold-up of sixty patrons in a downtown gambling place.

The dead were identified tentatively as Herschel Stephens, Robert Irwin and Raymond Tucker, all of Gary.

Gus Kokenes, 25, of Chicago, who police said was an accomplice of the trio, was seized in a rear room.

The holdup men met death at the hands of Al Lichtenfeld, veteran detective, who returned their fire with a shot gun as they attempted to escape from a second floor rear window.

Stephens and Irwin met instant death. Tucker died on the way to a hospital.

Police were summoned to the place they described as a "bookie joint" by a resident living on the opposite side of Washington street who saw the gunmen enter the establishment and line up the patrons.

When Sergeant Harold Brown and a police detail attempted to break down the front door, the bandits fled to the rear of the building. In desperation they leaped through the second floor window and tried to slide down telephone poles.

Their bodies hurtled to the pavement as the deadly fire from Lichtenfeld's saved-off shotgun took effect after the bandits had emptied their revolvers wildly and futilely.

Tax Law Stands Test

The general principle involved in the unemployment factor of the federal social security act of 1936 appears to have cleared the first hurdle in the highest court of the land.

A ruling of the United States Supreme court announced Monday permitted New York State's unemployment insurance legislation, designed to comply with the federal act, to stand on the statute books.

The court was evenly divided, four to four, in absence of Justice Harlan Fiske Stone, who is detained from the bench by illness. To the laymen this might seem a decision neither on one side or the other of the issues involved. But under usual court practice, a state law is confirmed by the high court unless a majority rules against it; in this particular case no negative majority was recorded, hence the New York statute stands. The Supreme court confirmed the finding of the New York Court of Appeals that the decision is correct.

Implications of the decision are important as an index finger pointing to the possible future of the whole legislative program involved in the unemployment insurance factor of the social security act. Chief argument against the New York law, as presented by attorneys, was that it deprived employers of liberty and property (in compulsory payment of a three percent tax on payroll) and it was therefore in violation of the 14th amendment to the federal constitution which forbids such a thing.

The New York Court of Appeals, now upheld by the United States Supreme court, ruled that the New York law is not in violation of the 14th amendment for its "combination of regulation and taxation" is a "fair and reasonable exercise of government power," but that it is not "so extravagant or arbitrary as to constitute an abuse of power."

Quoting further from the opinion of the New York Court of Appeals, which the Supreme Court sustained, we find that Justice Frederick E. Crane of the lower court declared that he could see "nothing unreasonable or unconstitutional in the legislative act which seeks to meet the evils and dangers of unemployment in the future by raising a fund through taxation of employers generally."

Some of the minor objections raised to the law were swept overboard by the state court's finding and are left uncontested by the Supreme Court. Many states, including Illinois, have been hesitant to enact unemployment insurance to comply with the federal social security act, on apprehension that the entire program was in danger of being overturned by the Supreme court. The present decision, leaving the general principle unscathed, will tend to speed up legislation along that line by other states, and thus allow employers in those states to qualify for benefits under the law of which they would be deprived until such legislation is passed, although their employers would not escape the tax.

Revision of the social security act will be attempted in Congress this winter. Some changes may be effected to make it more "workable." But with the initial high court test passed without an upset, the underlying principle of the act is likely to be preserved.

Cantor Takes a Day Off

Eddie Cantor, star of stage, screen and radio, took a day off this week to do a little duck hunting. His vacation was of some interest to this section of the state, particularly to Beardstown, for it was at a camp a few miles up the river from Beardstown that the wise-cracking star did his shooting.

Beardstown people didn't know that he was coming. Few persons found out about his presence in their midst until he was gone. That fact, no doubt, made Eddie's vacation more enjoyable. He couldn't have had much time to himself if his admirers had known he was there.

Cantor "slipped into town" with a Chicago companion, Adolph Sieben, at 2:30 o'clock Monday morning. They were joined by Fred Rohn, club owner, who took them to his camp.

"Cantor is a fair shot," according to Mr. Rohn, who said that Cantor and Sieben killed about 12 ducks between them.

According to the hunting club owner, Cantor "laughed and joked all day, but admitted that he had met his match." During the morning and afternoon in the duck blind Cantor and Rohn, who is somewhat of a wit himself, "kidded" each other between shots. At the end of the day Cantor told Sieben: "Well, there's one fellow I can't get the best of."

Which goes to show that the men who are paid for making the world laugh, are intensely human, and appreciate good humor and fellowship whether it be before the microphone of a nationwide hook-up, or in the damp hunting blinds along a marsh.

We here in Central Illinois pay good money to see Cantor and other leading actors perform. In return, they pay us for coming in occasionally and shooting our ducks.

Confiscation of Estate

It has been estimated by the Internal Revenue Collector at Detroit that the federal government will receive about $18,500,000, or almost two-thirds of the estate of the late Senator Couzens, assuming that it runs to $30,000,000. This shows the enormous bite that federal taxation takes out of large estates.

Advocates of such drastic taxation admit and defend the purpose to bring about a more equal distribution of wealth through such appropriation or confiscation, for public purposes. But there is a good deal taken for granted in such an argument. The huge sums which will be subtracted from private possession are in a large measure withdrawn from the fund of capital available for industrial expansion. In some cases estate taxes may force liquidation of going enterprises to the disadvantage of labor and of the communities in which such concerns have operated. The enormous benefactions for educational and philanthropic purposes which have been characteristic of the reemployment of great private fortunes in this country, through the sense of trusteeship of their owners, will not be possible in the future on anything like the scale they have been made in the past. The note of alarm on this account from universities, hospitals, libraries and other institutions ministering to public welfare has been frequently sounded recently.

It is a violent assumption that great public expenditures necessarily promote the public welfare. Vast sums are spent, due to group pressure, unproductively and wastefully or for the advantage of special interests as against the general good. The American people have profited immensely in the past from vast sums spent for educational, philanthropic and cultural purposes. Drying up the sources from which such benefactions have been made possible in the past is of questionable advantage.

The Railroad King

The relationship of the VanSweringen brothers in the railroad business was much like that of the Wright brothers in aviation and the Mayos in medicine and surgery. They were devoted and inseparable companions. They maintained a common bank account. They even shared a bedroom in their ample house on their estate outside of Cleveland, Ohio.

The death of M. J. Van Sweringen was a cruel blow to his brother, O. P. VanSweringen. The latter survived his brother less than a year, passing away suddenly this week in a railroad coach, on one of the lines he had helped to expand.

The VanSweringen brothers possessed great imagination, resourcefulness and driving force. In years before the depression other cities envied Cleveland their leadership. But their imagination outran their judgment, as many investors learned with bitter experience. Even the experienced House of Morgan salvaged only $5,000,000 out of $50,000,000 in loans and defaulted interest.

The business race is not always won by the swift, as was demonstrated in the spectacular career of these two brothers who rose from obscurity.

Local Sorority Has Initiation Service

Three New Members Given Work Tuesday at Thanksgiving Party

The Alumnae Chapter of Alpha Iota sorority of Brown's Business college held its Thanksgiving party and an initiation ceremony Tuesday evening. There were 22 members present. The chapter met for dinner at the Peacock Inn, where the initiation was also held. The new members, the Misses Lucy Robinson, Hannah Danish and Irene Roy, were initiated into the organization.

Mary Helen Johnson was named chairman of the benefit bridge committee, replacing Juanita Tendick, who has accepted a position in New York. During the initiation ceremony, the following served as officers: President, Ethel Stewart; vice-president, Frances Wallbaum; secretary, Louise Nicholson; treasurer, Mildred Carter; Marshall, Mary Helen Johnson; chaplain, Catherine Shanahan; Historian, Edna Walsh. At the close of the ceremony the members went to the club room and spent the remainder of the evening playing bridge. First prize went to Mildred Carter and second to Catherine Shanahan. Refreshments were served by a committee composed of Misses Wallbaum and Walsh.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

Proponents of Reform for Merchant Marine Look With Doubt on Board Personnel... Ocean Mail Adjustment Up to Official Untrained for Task... Hand of Shipping Lobby, as Well as Touch of Roper, Seen in Activities.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
(Journal-Courier Washington Correspondent)

Washington—The merchant marine problem and the new law intended to solve it are getting right back into the hands of the persons from whom Congress tried to take administration of maritime problems.

According to charges which will be aired in the next Senate, if Roosevelt doesn't act meanwhile, control is rapidly being invested in a group of officials who repeatedly have been accused of subservience to subsidized ship operators at the expense of taxpayers and the safety of passengers at sea.

Theoretically, administering the new law is a Maritime Commission of three men, whom President Roosevelt appointed to serve temporarily until he could make up his mind as to personnel of a permanent five-man commission.

The three are Admiral M. M. Taylor, Admiral Henry A. Wiley, and George Landick, none of whom is conspicuous for familiarity with merchant marine matters.

General Order No. 4 of the commission says that Commissioner Landick has assumed direction of the adjustment of ocean mail contracts, most of which have officially been declared fraudulently executed. The order says Special Counsel James Craig Peacock will act as adviser to Landick.

Qualifications Doubtful
Landick, former employee of the Postoffice and Treasury Procurement office, is said to have had no experience which would qualify him for the adjustment job.

Peacock is a former director of the Shipping Board Bureau, where he served under Secretary of Commerce Daniel Roper. He has been a constant target for those who have sought to correct merchant marine abuses.

The big idea behind establishment of a separate commission was to take maritime affairs away from the Commerce Department. Settling of the mail contracts is one of the commission's most important functions, and strong representations are being made to the president that it should be reserved for the permanent commission.

Another general order consolidates the Shipping Board Bureau's division of finance, general controllers of-

In Glaucoma, Pressure of Fluid Within Eyeballs Causes Blindness

By DR. MORRIS FISHBURN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

Glaucoma causes 15 per cent of all blindness in this country, and about one-half of the blindness in adults. In this condition, pressure within the eyeball brings about loss of sight.

There is interference with the passing out of the fluid that comes into the eye and it is accumulation of this fluid that brings about the pressure. As the pressure increases, there is pain, the eye gets hard and reddened, and the pupil gray and cloudy. This is the acute form of glaucoma.

There is, however, a second and much more serious form in which there is a gradual obstruction of the drainage system so that the pressure increases very slowly. In this case the loss of sight takes place gradually.

A physician uses the ophthalmoscope to determine whether the pressure has been sufficiently great to cause a depression of the optic nerve at the back of the eye. With another instrument, a tonometer, he measures the pressure from time to time to determine whether it is increasing or decreasing.

As the glaucoma develops, the person finds that he can see ahead of him as well as he ever would, but not so well to the sides. Then, as the vision narrows, the person finds that he can see ahead of him as well as he ever would, but not so well to the sides. Then, as the division of finance. The acting director designated is J. J. Miller, whom Peacock personally brought into the bureau.

Finances have previously been handled under the general controller, and investigators of the merchant marine mess have insisted this was the one division they found which could be depended on to give accurate information or genuine co-operation looking to protection of the government.

The powerful shipping lobby has been at work again, according to insiders, who also think they discern the hand of Secretary Roper.

Hamilton Can Take It
Correspondents who recalled Republican Chairman John D. M. Hamilton's sweeping claims for London rode him unmercifully at his first post-election press conference in Washington. Hamilton showed he could take it with a grin.

He said the Republican program would have to be worked out by Republican members of Congress in caucus and was reminded that several of the few Republican senators were progressives who wouldn't caucus.

"What do you propose to do?" someone demanded, "have Arthur Vandenberg and Wallace White caucus in a telephone booth?"

"I heard only two of Governor Landick's campaign speeches, and those were two I had to sit through," he acknowledged at another point.

"You were damned lucky!" commented a correspondent, and Hamilton leaned back and laughed with the crowd.

HAVE HOLIDAY GUESTS

Canine Eyes Guide Blind Safely, Says Morris S. Frank Here

Official of Seeing Eye Pays Tribute to "Buddy," Who Takes Care of Him

"During the six years I was blind my most difficult handicap was dependence on seeing people. I couldn't do anything or go anywhere with safety and ease unless someone helped me. I was ambitious and there were many things I wanted to do, and would have done, if I had been able to get about by myself.

"Today, I can do these things, for though I still cannot see, I am no longer blind. With 'Buddy,' my Seeing Eye dog guide, I've traveled thousands of miles without human aid. I can go anywhere, quickly, safely and economically."

Thus Morris S. Frank, vice-president of the Seeing Eye, Inc., Morris-town, N. J., paid tribute to his dog, "Buddy," here yesterday. He was in the city to visit the Illinois School for the Blind. He is on a 7,000-mile trip to place Seeing Eye dogs with graduates of various schools for the blind throughout the country.

"Buddy" was present for the interview yesterday in Mr. Frank's room at the Dunlap hotel. She is ten years old, and has for many years taken care of Mr. Frank. "You are the dog's property, not its master," he said in describing how the animal works.

At the commands, "forward," "right" or "left," the dog guides the blind person everywhere, stopping for steps, broken places in the pavement and overhead obstructions, leading safely through traffic and guiding around pedestrians in the street.

"We have two dogs working in the Chicago loop," Mr. Frank said. "There are eight in Illinois. The Seeing Eye has trained and put in service with the blind 250 German shepherd dogs. It requires three months for a seeing person to train the dog, then the blind person for whom it is to care spends a month with the dog in training at the school. 'Buddy' is my constant companion. She walks so that she is at my left knee, and I hold her by a U-shaped handle on her harness. When she stops I take half a step forward and am ready to step up or down.

As Mr. Frank got Buddy's harness, the dog was on the alert and came to him at once. She watched his every move as he made preparations to leave the hotel room, guided him to the elevator and then to the dining room. The dog is fed once each day with raw beef. She is brushed and curried daily.

"This dog has a tough job," said Mr. Frank. "She has to be petted by hundreds of people and give demonstrations in the talks I make at schools for the blind. She is a good dog and friendly with everyone."

Lawyers, executives, newspaper men, and men in many other walks of life are enabled to go about their business and earn a living because of these faithful dogs. Of 33 persons who went blind, 32 were returned to their former jobs within six months through the aid of the Seeing Eye dogs.

BELIEVE BROTHER OF FORMER LOCAL MEN INJURED IN WRECK

One of the injured persons in the disastrous collision Tuesday night between two Chicago passenger trains is Albert Shanken, who is believed by friends here to be a brother of Herman and Henry Shanken, once in business in this city. The Shanken store was on the north side of the square. The accident occurred when a North Shore line train collided with a city elevated train on the far north side in an area where both companies use the same trackage.

Wife of Ambassador To Russia is Cousin Of Local Residents

Mrs. Marjorie Post Davies Kin of Ward Family; Couple Socially Prominent

Mrs. Joseph E. Davies, wife of the newly appointed ambassador to Russia, is a cousin of Lathrop H. Ward and Miss Florence Ward of this city. She was formerly Miss Marjorie Post, daughter of G. W. Post, the cereal millionaire of Battle Creek, Mich. Mr. Post went from Springfield to Try a Short-Horn Cigar 5c.

Battle Creek some forty years ago, and within a few years accumulated a large fortune.

Members of the Post family have not been in this city for many years, but their relation to local residents is a point of interest. Mrs. Davies is the former Mrs. Edward F. Hutton, and was the heiress to the Post cereal fortune. She was married to Davies last December.

The new ambassador has been a brilliant diplomatic attorney in Washington for the past 25 years. He was a member of the Federal Trade commission under President Wilson in 1915-16. In 1918 he was offered a choice of the posts of ambassador to Russia, to Italy and Governor of the Philippines, but declined all to run for U. S. senator from Wisconsin, his native state. He was defeated.

In recent years he has served as counsel in international matters for several foreign governments, and is now attorney for Gen. Rafael Trukilo, president of Santo Domingo, who is much liked by the fact that the United States is still receiver of customs for his country. He would like to have this changed, and Davies is now believed to have an inside track with the United States Senate committee on territories and insular affairs, which has charge of the matter. Senator Millard E. Tydings of Maryland recently married Mrs. Eleanor Davies Chessbrough, a daughter of the new ambassador to Russia.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Davies are socially prominent in Washington and have been lavish in their entertainment. Their social activities will now be transferred to the frigid climate of the Russian capital.

Andrew Harris of Alexander was included in the number of business visitors in the city yesterday.

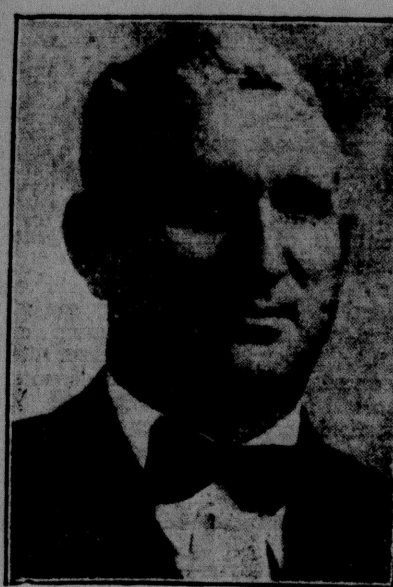

William Cleary was a local caller yesterday from Sinclair.

Woman, 99, to Have Anniversary Party In Cass Co. Today

Family Dinner Arranged for Mrs. John Kraft; Other Chanderville Notes

Chanderville—The 99th birthday of Mrs. John Kraft will be celebrated on Thursday, Nov. 26, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Greb with a family dinner. Mrs. Greb with her sister, Miss Emma Schneider are nieces of Mrs. Kraft, who have cared for their aunt during the past several years, since she has been unable to live at her own home.

Anna Marie Neis came to America with her parents when she was twenty years old, from Wallenrod, Hesser, Darmstadt, Germany, where she was born Nov. 26, 1837, the daughter of Andrew and Maria Elizabeth Neis. Their home was made in Beardstown where on April 1861 she was married to John Kraft. In 1869 they moved to their farm home east of Chanderville, now known as the Henry Schaad farm. Here they resided until 1896 when they came to Chanderville. In 1922, Mr. Kraft passed away. An only son, John, also had died many years earlier at the age of 14.

Mrs. Kraft with her family has been a staunch member of the Lutheran church here, since coming to this part of Cass county. Her son was a member of the confirmation class but did not live to be present with his class for confirmation. Mr. and Mrs. Kraft were both known for their kindly interest in Chanderville and for their earnest support of their church. Mrs. Kraft was a fine and careful needle worker as long as her eyesight permitted.

Members of her family to be present on Thursday are Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Greb, their daughter, Miss Josephine Greb, and sons, Ralph and Edwin, all of Springfield; two nieces, Mrs. Emma Kitch and Miss Eda Ortwel of Beardstown, and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Greb, their daughter, Miss Alice Marie and son, Charles of Chanderville.

CHECK OF GAME BAGS DISCLOSES FEW BIRDS

Check 158 Cars of Hunters, Find 40 Quail

Jerseyville.—Wardens in this part of Illinois report the greatest influx of hunters in the history of the district during the week end.

Cars of hunters were checked at frequent points along highways, and bridges on important highways were favorite sites for the wardens at work. County Game Warden Thomas Cummings of Jersey county, Warden A. Bopp of Calhoun, and Warden W. J. Allen of Greene county checked hunters in this part of the state Sunday evening at the Joe Page bridge at East Hardin on the Illinois river.

An outstanding result of the check-up was the revelation that there are very few quail in this part of the state. Out of 158 cars of hunters checked at the bridge the game bags contained less than forty quail. Three wild ducks were checked and nearly 1,000 rabbits. The heaviest kill of rabbits for any of those checked was twenty-eight for two hunters.

Sportsmen stated generally that quail are not to be found, and stressed the belief that the season should be entirely closed for several years to give the remaining ones a chance to multiply. The rabbits checked were shot mostly in Pike and Scott county fields. One pheasant was found in the total number of game bags.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Dawson Pass Anniversary Quietly in Jordan St. Home

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Dawson quietly observed their golden wedding anniversary Tuesday at their home, 415 Jordan street. There was no formal celebration of the event, but several friends called and offered congratulations, and in the evening some twenty guests assembled to honor the couple. Mr. Dawson and Miss Aliea Fisher were married at a residence on Hardin avenue in this city Nov. 24, 1886. They removed to Roodhouse, where they resided until 17 years ago last August, when they moved to their present residence here.

The couple returned to Jacksonville when the Eli Bridge Co. moved its plant here from Roodhouse. Mr. Dawson was an employee of the company for many years, retiring only a few years ago. He was a decorator of ferris wheel seats. He is now 79 years of age, and in fairly good health.

Mrs. Dawson is 73. She is an invalid and must be confined to a wheel chair. In spite of this handicap, she does her own house work, with Mr.

Dawson's assistance. She gets about the house in her wheel chair and takes a real pride in the management of household affairs.

Jaw-Juh's Turkey Hunter Spins Thanksgiving Tale

New York, Nov. 25.—(P)—Right in the midst of our argument with the butcher over the weight and price of a Thanksgiving turkey, in barged Ralph McGill, the old turkey hunter from Jaw-Juh.

"Why, you granite canyon native," roared Mr. McGill, "so you buy those birds on the hoof up here. We hunt for 'em down in Georgia where everything's peaches and turkey."

It's almost as hard to out-talk turkey hunter McGill as it is to out-write him, so we snatched one of his big cigars and listened to him talk turkey.

"You don't sleep much the night before a turkey hunt," he began, "because you're off on the greatest dawn with a million birds singing and hopping about in the trees, marching silently through a forest trail with a gun on your shoulder and the dew sprinkling your face from the bushes as you go by them."

"Silently each hunter is dropped out of line at a motion of the leader's hand. Some sixty yards away you can see the man next to you. You are terribly alone. The stillness is so emphatic it seems the whole world must be still and that nowhere bands are playing, children shouting or boiler factories operating."

"As the pulse begins to beat, you hear the leader's faint whistle. You know the beaters are moving forward, all in a line, and that the noise they make will make the turkeys get up and fly. You slip the safety catch off your gun. And you wait. And then comes a voice crying in the wilderness, long and drawn out, saying: 'Mark 'em, mark 'em.' It means the turkeys are flying—turkey dinners weighing 18 or 20 pounds apiece."

"You look up. There up above one of them is hurtling out of the trees, flying high and at racing speed. And you know it's yours. You try to remember to lead, you catch the body and swing the gun out ahead and pull the trigger. The explosion roars in your ears and you all yell out as you see the turkey collapse and plummet through limbs of trees and strike the earth with a thud."

"You remember that a wounded one—and these wild ones are strong and durable—may try to run away. So you turn and start yelling and running, your breath all gone. You land in a thicket of brambles that tear at face and clothes, and you hear the leader laughing and saying: 'Go on back, you've got this one, you can get another.'"

"Ah," mused Turkey Hunter McGill, "and you never hunted turkey." Then he told us the story of Old Hook, the latest turkey hunter in Jaw-Juh.

Old Hook started out to walk up a turkey, but soon he lay down for a nap beside a log. His clothes were too large for him and they hung on a pair of faded old suspenders. As he opened his eyes, he saw a large, wild gobbler feeding near him. Old Hook flung out his hand and grabbed the gobbler by the leg.

It was a bit difficult because a wild turkey's wings can all but knock down a man, but Old Hook had him at last. He knew he couldn't get him back to the house alive—and there was his gun.

After considerable thought, Old Hook managed to tie the turkey to a small bush with his suspenders. He got back his breath, his gun, stepped back a few paces, fired, and then looked.

What he saw sickened Old Hook. There was his turkey racing off through the woods. He wore a pair of Old Hook's suspenders. The charge had missed the gobbler and cut the suspenders in two just near the small bush.

"Somewhere in South Georgia," drawled Turkey Hunter McGill, "there's the only turkey in the world which wears suspenders."

PREDICT WIDE OPEN ARMY-NAVY BATTLE

Annapolis, Md.—(P)—The Navy—whose middies don't believe in "bear stories"—would not be at all surprised to see a wide-open game in Philadelphia against the Army Saturday.

Head Coach Tommy Hamilton pointed out today that Army has two fine open field runners in Monk Meyer and Jim Craig and that Navy has three of them in Bill Ingram, Sneed Schmidt and Ned Thomas. Such backs, he said, will produce a wide-open game.

He has indicated Navy may use the "spread formation" it has employed time and again since Hamilton took over Navy teams. The line spreads across the entire field when running those plays.

THORNHILL'S GUESS

Chicago.—(P)—Coach Claude (Tiny) Thornhill of Stanford University's Cardinals says "it's Washington in the Rose Bowl game for the coast without a doubt but to the eastern representative it's anyone's guess."

Thornhill and his squad of 33 players were headed today for New York and a football game Saturday with Columbia. The Cardinals worked out yesterday on snow-covered Staggs Field.

LOU WILL TREAT TINY
New York.—(P)—Lou Little is nothing if not grateful. When he and his Columbia footballers went to the Rose Bowl a few years ago, Tiny Thornhill, Stanford coach, gave the visitors a big time. Now Lou will reciprocate with a dinner for Tiny, his staff and his team next Monday after the Stanford-Columbia game Saturday, with every football coach in region attending. Wonder if Tiny also will repeat history by having Stanford whip the Lions, just as Columbia did in the "bowl" game?

Baseball Rumors Fly in St. Louis

Rickey Will Not Admit Pirates May Take Dizzy Dean

St. Louis, Nov. 25.—(P)—Two things were definite today in a welter of baseball trade rumors concerning the St. Louis teams—Pie Traynor of the Pittsburgh Pirates conferred with Branch Rickey of the Cardinals and Cy Slapnicka, representing the Cleveland Indians, conferred with officials of the Browns.

Rickey admitted the Pirate manager visited him at home yesterday, but declined to discuss a report a deal for Dizzy Dean was under way. It was rumored the star pitcher may go to Pittsburgh for Shortstop Ark Vaughan and Pitcher Cy Blanton. President Sam Breadon of the Cards, when asked about the report, said, "I don't want to talk about that. I have no comment to make."

The trade talk in the Browns' office was believed to have centered around a possible exchange of Catcher Rollie Hemsley for a Cleveland pitcher.

William O. De Witt, general manager of the Browns, readily confirmed his conference with Slapnicka yesterday, but said any deal with the Indians would not be closed until the American League meeting in Chicago Dec. 8.

SIMMONS MAKES DEBUT

Chicago.—(P)—Oze Simmons, the University of Iowa's brilliant open field runner, will make his professional grid debut tomorrow. Simmons and his brother, Don, Iowa end, will play with the American Giants, Chicago negro professional team, against the Calumet All-Stars.

HOLD FINAL MEETING

Chicago.—(P)—Athletic directors, coaches and faculty representatives of the Illinois Intercollegiate conference will meet here Dec. 4 for their annual meeting. Baseball, track and football schedules will be made.

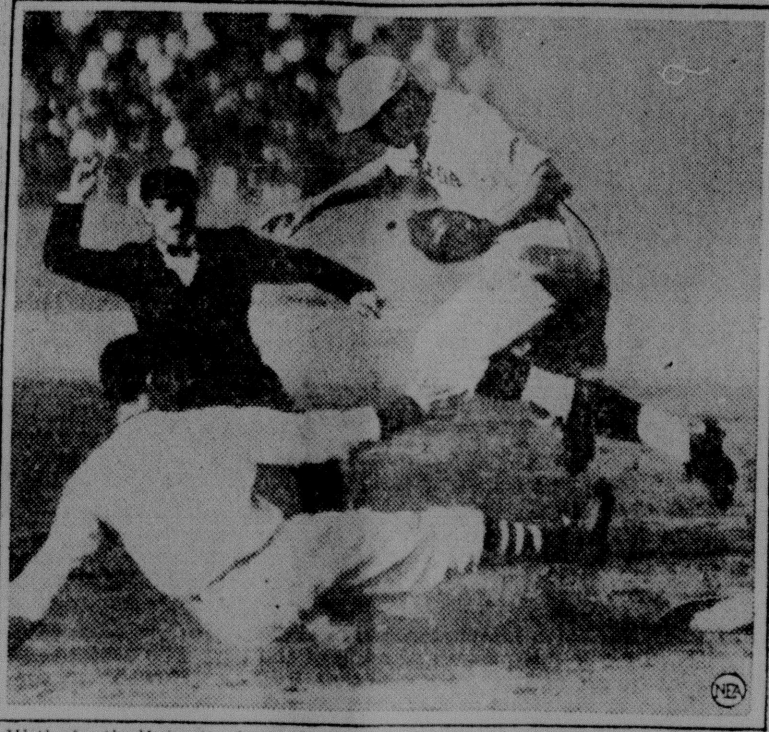

Chicago.—(P)—Phil Handler, former Texas Christian star who has been coaching the Chicago Cardinal line, will return to the active playing list Sunday against the Chicago Bears.

The Bears have lost only one game in ten starts and are tied with Green Bay for the National pro league's western division leadership.

John Obert transacted business in the city yesterday afternoon from Woodson.

Mrs. John Vollmer of Beardstown was a visitor in the city yesterday.

Football? Not in Japan!

With football in its last stages and winter howling in the United States, baseball still is all the rage in Japan, the inter-collegiate league there being at its height. Here is some stirring action that first-bitten members of the American Hot Stove League probably will relish—Yoshio Sugitani, Meiji University's shortstop, is out at first after grounding to third in a nip-and-tuck game with Waseda University. The Oriental umpire is just as dramatic in calling the runner out as our own arbiters.

:FAN BREEZES:

Thanksgiving Day, 60 years ago. (As we imagine them after hearing tales from persons who are able to remember them, and recorded in diary form.)

Up before dawn and out to the pond where I shot enough ducks and geese to provide a Thanksgiving dinner. Truly, this is a land of plenty, with wild turkeys, deer, plenty of rabbits, prairie chickens, quail, out in the woods.

On the way back from the pond I went through a timber and saw several wild turkeys. Two of these fell before my gun and will make an excellent Thanksgiving dinner. We can have the ducks and the geese for Sunday's repast.

Next week my cousin from the city is coming out for a prairie chicken shoot, and already I have spotted several places where these birds have been hiding. We'll have a real hunt when he arrives, for there are plenty of ducks still on the ponds and enough of other varieties to provide excellent hunting.

Thanksgiving Day, 1936. (As it really is according to reports from hunters.)

Tramped all morning and couldn't kick up a covey of quail. We had some good geese working too, but they couldn't find them. Guess someone has been out here before the season opened and killed them off.

A couple rabbits got away but we did bag about a dozen. A friend of mine, a doctor, was here and reported around here, and all of the rabbits we shot were on the run, usually some distance away.

We found some wonderful looking pheasant covers, but there wasn't a bird in the bush. There were a few sparrows flitting about, but no quail and no pheasant. Wonder when they are going to start putting some game out here for us to shoot.

Looks as if hunting is becoming one of the forgotten arts. It is just

GRIGGSVILLE GROUP ENTERTAINED AT HOME OF MRS. BARRY

Griggsville.—Mrs. James Barry, Jr., and Mrs. Gilbert Lowe entertained a group of ten women delightfully Thursday afternoon at the country home of Mrs. Barry. Mrs. Merwin Riley was the guest of honor and was the recipient of a number of lovely gifts. Bridge was the diversion of the afternoon, Miss Marian Thomas of Pittsfield was an out of town guest.

Mrs. Russell Dester and Mrs. E. C. Wade were hostesses to the Needlecraft club Friday afternoon at the Jester home. Guests in addition to the club members were: Mrs. Gilbert Love, Mrs. Woodworth and Mrs. Frank Tomlin.

Mr. and Mrs. James Ireland and son, Jimmie, of Laramie, Wyoming, have returned home after a visit of several days with Mrs. Ireland's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Sowers. Mr. Sowers accompanied them to Wyoming, where he will make an extended visit.

The members of the Thursday club and their husbands enjoyed their regular monthly dinner party Thursday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe A. Wade.

Robert Hall, who has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Hall for several weeks, will leave Sunday night for Shreveport, Louisiana, where he has accepted an engagement with the Jay Whidden orchestra.

Mrs. Louis Brown entertained a company of twelve women at a delightful one o'clock luncheon on Friday.

Rev. and Mrs. O. B. Hess entertained the following guests Tuesday and Wednesday: Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Winget and daughters, Loetha and Betty, and little grand son, Marion Earl Fabert of St. Joseph, Ill.

A number of Pike county people atas bad as fishing was this summer. Then it was too hot to sit in a boat, and too dry to find enough water for the fish to live in. There seems to be a lot of food in the fields, food that farmers didn't believe was worth harvesting, but which would make a banquet for birds.

We did see a flock of crows, but they didn't get close enough to be shot at with a long range rifle. We did hear something to the effect that they were good to eat when properly prepared. We might try hunting those things next.

The biggest hope for the future of hunting appears to lie in the Sportsmen's club. They are trying to get conservation out of politics, bring back the game that once inhabited this territory, and provide some of the sport that my grandfather enjoyed.

And then, to end up this little piece, we'd like to tell a true story. Coach Frank Walker and his star back, "Rabbit" Ranson, went out hunting ducks the other day. It was the first duck shoot the Crimsons coach has ever enjoyed, but now he's crazy about the sport.

Walker knocked down a couple ducks, and both of them fell in the water some distance from the blind. "Rabbit" began kidding the coach, asking him if that was the best he could do, and then declaring that when he killed ducks, they fell in the boat.

More ducks came along, and Walker raised up to take some shots at a pair sailing along beautifully. "Bang," and one duck nose dived to the water. Walker drew a bead on the other duck, there was an explosion behind him as another of the duck hunters in the boat behind him cut loose, but the second duck Walker was watching didn't fall.

Keeping his aim, the Crimsons mentor was just ready to squeeze the trigger when something hit him in the legs, and he toppled out of the boat. In the boat was a duck, and Rabbit held the tell-tale smoking shot gun.

Alcatraz Looks at the Bridge

Only a mile away from one of the world's greatest bridges, over which millions soon will pass, the loneliest spot in America just up in the foreground, as seen from a swooping plane. In the distance is the Golden Gate bridge, nearly completed, as seen across the bay toward San Francisco from Alcatraz island. Uncle Sam's impregnable prison. There the nation's most desperate convicts are utterly isolated from the outside world, the main cellblock being the long, low building in the center. Directly before it is the headquarters building. At the right tip of the island are laundry, shoe and typewriter repair shops.

Liberated Siamese Twin Living Today

Surgeon Separates Living from Body of Deceased

New York.—(P)—Simplicio Godina lived on today, parted by death and a surgeon's knife from the Siamese twin to whom he had been joined for 28 years.

His brother, Lucio, ill with pneumonia for 19 days, died last night in York hospital while Simplicio, in good health, lay beside him.

Within an hour, an operation, in which five surgeons collaborated, had severed the bodies, linked by muscular tissue at the base of the spine.

Physicians said the living twin was in no immediate danger. They explained there had been no common blood stream uniting the brothers and that the operation had been in the nature of a "routine" amputation.

During the operation the twins' wives remained in a room in hospital shaken with grief and anxiety. They are sisters the former Navidad and Victoria Melos, and were married to the twins in Manila in 1929.

Simplicio was said to have taken his brother's death bravely.

It was explained that separation of the twins by surgery had been considered possible a number of years ago, but the brothers declined to undergo such an operation. They were vaudeville entertainers.

Once Famous Singer Fails in Comeback

Galli-Curci Falters in At- tempt After Operation

Chicago.—(P)—The ghost of a voice once hailed as that of the greatest of the coloraturas sounded last night in Chicago's great pink and gold opera house. A packed house listened in agonized suspense. Then the critics wrote their verdict:

Galli-Curci, the magnificent, had faltered in her comeback after an operation for gopher fifteen months ago.

For her courage in attempting a second debut in the face of tremendous odds, and after six years' absence from opera, they had only words of praise.

Remembering the glowing voice that made Amelia Galli-Curci's art the wonder of a decade, 3,400 persons had turned out to witness a second triumph. They burst into wild applause when she came upon the stage in "La Boheme." The performance stopped.

Then came the test. Her voice came forth, but it was not the voice of twenty years ago. Occasionally it trembled. Listeners noticed an inclination to avoid climaxes. Critics shook their heads and said it was nervousness.

Glenn Dillard Gunn, music critic of the Herald-Examiner, wrote:

"They (her well-wishers) came to witness a second triumph. What they heard was a faint, faltering echo of the vocal magic this great artist once practiced. Mme. Galli-Curci has not renewed her voice because it then was the voice of youth and twenty years have taken toll no surgeon's knife can recover."

President Roosevelt's peace address, the president's son, got what was described as the "royal works." Details of the initiative were kept secret under the stern command of the king's advisers.

Iowa U. in Night Club Business—but No Liquor!

Just another bibulous night spot, a casual observer might say, but the one in this scene isn't. It is believed to be the first college-sponsored night club in the country, launched at the University of Iowa, in Iowa City. It has soft lights, music, dancing, floor shows, excellent food, and all the other ingredients—except liquor. Even beer is barred. A campaign led by Editor Jess Gorkin of the Daily Iowa resulted in the opening of the "Silver Shadow," with 110 couples of formally attired collegians attending. Gorkin is shown in foreground with Miss Dorothea Carlson. The musician is Donato Petrucci, law student, all entertainers and waiters being students.

Many Railroad Men At Yount Funeral

Veteran Alton Engineer's Funeral at Roodhouse Monday Afternoon

Roodhouse, Nov. 25.—One hundred fifty persons, most of them railroad men, paid respects to Dan Yount, veteran Alton engineer, who was buried in Fernwood cemetery Monday afternoon following service at the Reeve mortuary. Virtually every division local on the Alton was represented either in person or by large floral emblems.

Pallbearers were William Nenne, regular fireman on Mr. Yount's train; William Carr, O. T. Tolson, and C. J. Davis, brother engineers, and William Kauth, Lexington, and Gus Gerbing, Roodhouse, fisherman friends who shared in Mr. Yount's lifelong hobby as angler.

Prime Clark, prominent Cleveland, Ohio, manufacturer and first cousin of the deceased, and William Yount of Warren, Ohio, a brother, were present in addition to relatives in this vicinity.

CITY RABBIT BREEDER GOES TO BIG SHOW

Heat of Summer Reduced His Numbers from 58 to 14

Another of the effects of last summer's terrific heat will be felt by a local resident during the next two days, he said yesterday, but he shouldered his difficulties and with ten rabbits safely ensconced in a trailer, set out for Fort Wayne, Indiana, where he will enter the huge bunnies in the national show.

He is John Deem, who accompanied by his wife, left yesterday for the national show. Mr. Deem's big stock of Checker Giants, which have been able to win the grand championship of this division for two consecutive years, was diminished from 58 of last spring to 14 at present, thereby disproving the old comparison, "as prolific as rabbits."

Rabbits, Mr. Deem said, can stand all kinds of cold weather, but they can't take it when it gets hot. He said that his prize rabbit of last year's national show, arrived back in Jacksonville a corpse—probably because some person, in a spirit of kindness, set the animal too close to a radiator during its trip home from the exposition. He said he was convinced that heat killed the animal, despite the fact that the weather was cold at the time the show was being held.

Deem pointed to the fact that the rabbits have a luxurious coat of fur as one of the reasons they are unable to stand heat.

"Well, I have to be a good sport," he concluded, "So I'll take ten of my best rabbits and exhibit again this year without much hope of winning anything."

Pre-Holiday Sales

New York, Nov. 25.—(P)—Contradictory trends ruled in today's stock market as many leaders dipped a point or so while favored specialties advanced as much.

The trading spirit seemed to be buoyed in spots by the continuance of cheering business news, including the unabated flow of dividends, wage bonuses and favorable earnings statements. Tuesday's dividend disbursements aggregated upward of $50,000,000 from around 40 companies.

On the other hand, advices from Europe were still far from encouraging and many potential buyers refused to stray far from safety zones pending further light on complicated foreign problems.

It was one of those before-the-holiday sessions, many boardroom habits deserting the ticker tape in order to get an early start on Thanksgiving preparations.

After a fast opening, in which selling predominated, the pace slowed and activity was generally restricted thereafter.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues yielded 3.47 at 70.5. Transfers totaled 1,857,420 shares against 1,824,200 yesterday.

Merchandising stocks gave a good account of themselves on growing hopes of record holiday spending. Heavy equipment came to life as carriers began to post orders for locomotives and other material.

Choice Steers Up
To New High Peak

Chicago, Nov. 25.—(P)—Choice yearling steers brought a top of $12.35 per hundredweight in today's livestock market, a price unequaled since late in February. It was 10 cents higher than the peak established earlier in the week.

Although today's cattle trade was largely a peddling market as sellers sought to clear the market before the holiday, most light steers and yearlings sold strong. Some beefs intended for the livestock exposition were diverted to the slaughter market and these were held above $12.35.

A good supply of weighty steers, however, sold mostly steady to 15 cents lower. The average price of beef steers is now the highest of the year but the top is fully 32 per hundred weight lower than the peaks paid in January.

Hogs scaling above 210 pounds were steady but light weights lost 5 to 10 cents. Top held at $9.85. The hog run was fairly liberal though not as large as had been expected.

Fat lambs sold mostly steady, top was $9.35.

Wholesale pork loin and beef carcass prices were unchanged.

For more than 20 years the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, and county farm advisers have been conducting this project throughout the state as a means of helping farmers put their business on a better basis.

Approximately 35 farmers in Morgan county and some 2,000 or more farmers in the state as a whole are now keeping the simple farm account book which is the basis for the project. The book of each account keeper is summarized at the end of the year and a comparative report made out for each farm showing its strong and weak points in comparison with others in the neighborhood.

Cows in Greene and Morgan Testing Association Set Good Milk Production Marks; Farmers Will Open New Books Next Month; Beardstown Pigeons Win Texas Prizes

A report for the month of October has been issued by Lester Steffen, tester of the Greene and Morgan Dairy Herd Improvement association, showing the association average was 462 pounds of milk, 205 pounds of butter fat with 404 cows on test, from 24 herds.

Seventy-seven of the 404 cows were dry. Twenty-eight cows each produced 40 pounds or over of fat. During the month 16 cows were culled, due to low production and the high cost of feed.

Owners of the five high cows in the tests for the month were H. D. Edwards, R. E. Stocker, M. S. McCollister, H. D. Kamm and H. C. Strang & Sons.

On the honor roll were cows belonging to H. G. Strang & Sons, Kenneth Davis, George Preston, H. D. Kamm, R. E. Stocker, M. S. McCollister and L. J. Lorton.

Morgan County Farmers To Open Record Books

Morgan county's record keeping farmers will bring their 1936 business to a close and take steps in preparation for what promises to be a better year as they meet Dec. 17, 18 and 19, at the Farm Bureau headquarters, S. Caughy of the College of Agriculture will be present to check in their old account books and open their 1937 records.

Mr. Caughy has arranged to spend about 30 minutes with each farmer who kept records last year to assist in checking values and balancing the 1936 books. He has also arranged to meet with those farmers who will be keeping accounts for the first time to explain the details and answer any questions they may have.

Drive on Criminals Planned in Greene After Many Thefts

Recall History of Group That Broke Up Thefts Three Years Ago

Carrollton—During July 1933, a wave of crime, mostly robbery swept over Greene and nearby counties. For a few weeks there was scarcely a night that places were not entered and robbed. The bankers and business people of the county then organized a protective association. The purpose was to protect banks, business houses and homes against these raids.

A number of business men were sworn in as special deputy sheriffs and armed with high-powered rifles, shot-guns and other arms, and instructed in the use of them. They were told to be on the alert for bandits and if necessary to shoot to kill. The entire police force of this county got busy and in a short time the Greene county jail was taxed to its capacity. The climax came, when on Friday, August 4, 1933 two rash band boys of East Alton after a wild night of bacchanal in Madison, St. Clair, Macoupin and Greene counties, decided to defy the law in this county and in mid-afternoon motored up to the front doors of the Eldred State Bank in a stolen car and with drawn guns held up those in charge and escaped with about $700.00 in cash.

Less than ten minutes after the hold-up, one of the best organized forces ever formed was on the trail of the pair. Almost the entire male population of both Greene and Jersey counties, soon had the youths surrounded in a field on the Greene-Jersey borders and shots were exchanged.

Before nightfall the two youths were being interviewed by reporters in the Greene county jail and in less than two months almost the entire 280 who were in the county jail on major charges had pleaded guilty and were sentenced and for sometime the jail was empty.

Robberies have since been held at a very low number until a few weeks ago, when they were again started. The officers of Greene county are again warning bandits that it will be healthy for them to detour this section. The police forces have been strengthened. Merchants in various parts of the county have had special police appointed. The Bankers Protective organization is still in existence and orders are to break up the crime wave at any cost.

The latest robbery to be reported here was a 1935 Chevrolet coach, belonging to Mrs. Henrietta Westerhoff of White Hall which was stolen from a parking space at the northeast corner of the Carrollton Public Square sometime between 11 p. m., and midnight Saturday, while the Westerhoff children were attending a dance at Knights of Columbus Hall. The car was taken from among a number of parked cars.

had been his unknowing model for a sketch; she was again unconscious of him, but there was a vast difference in her.

Sitting alone and watching her, as he had done before, he remembered her as she had been on that first occasion. What had caused her mood? Now she was playing a part; then she had been herself.

The appearance of embarrassment which already had become familiar to Marcia returned to McDougall as he realized that although he had followed every word and action on the stage he had been conscious only of movement and tone.

He was aware of whispers behind him. "But how silly of Marcia," said Dorothy Osborn, to fly out to Chicago after him!"

"Well, my dear," said Mrs. Horton from the pinnacle of her greater experience, "a woman does some funny things when she's in love with a man."

"I think I could give him up, under the circumstances," Dorothy remarked.

John, returning, interrupted the flow of information to McDougall's ears.

"There's a lot of people I want you to meet," she told him. "Do you mind sticking around just a while longer? It isn't train time yet."

At the end of the second act, however, Mr. Henderson, the director, announced that that would be all for the evening. She announced further a blanket invitation to the Stagecraft Guild membership to attend a Christmas afternoon reception at her home, and then the players, the scattering of committee members and mere idlers trooped out.

AS usual, a party was made up for a hamburger and coffee call at the Dog Wagon.

John thoughtfully instructed the taxi drivers at the station to direct Mike, upon his arrival, across the street to the restaurant—"Tell him it's his wife, if he wants to know who the lady is that's asking for him"—and then piloted McDougall to a place among the crowd that was giving its unvarying orders to Tony Stellici.

"Any more holdups, Tony?" someone called down the counter. "There was a robbery here," Joan explained to McDougall. "A lot of this same crowd was held up by four men the other night. Lost all they had with them, however much that was."

"It was plenty," protested someone nearby. "They got a dollar watch and 80 cents of me alone." "The girls lost their jewelry,"

Dr. M. L. Pontius Gives Thanksgiving Talk at Meeting

Union Service Is Held At Northminster Church Wednesday

Drawing a lesson from the parable of the Pharisee and the Publican, Dr. M. L. Pontius, pastor of the Central Christian church, delivered a Thanksgiving message to a large congregation at the union meeting held Wednesday evening at the Northminster church.

Dr. Pontius in developing his text taken from the Epistles and the Gospels—"Thus Was Christ Jesus" "Lord I Thank Thee," said that if the people in the United States are to have a Christian Thanksgiving, the life of Christ should be studied. The day has become in many instances a day of feasting and a holiday instead of a holy day which was the purpose of the early settlers on these shores, who having suffered the bitter cold and famine in the early spring of 1622 found one half of their colony under a white coverlet, unable to withstand the rigorous climate. A day of prayer was appointed, and during the day of fasting a ship laden with food and supplies arrived changing the day into one of Thanksgiving. This observance was continued each year and when the colonies had all ratified, George Washington issued a proclamation of Thanksgiving. After this it was observed irregularly until the nation was torn by civil strife, then Abraham Lincoln seeing a rift in the war cloud and although many felt that God had turned his face away, Lincoln declared a Thanksgiving in 1863, and the nation has received a similar proclamation ever since.

Dr. Pontius quoted a teacher at Yale, as saying that the greatness of Jesus Christ was not in the seven kingdoms namely art, literature, science, philosophy, invention, statecraft or war, for he had none of these, but his heart was filled with gratitude, and his expressions were of thanksgiving to God. "Christ emphasized the spirit of gratitude by the parable of the Pharisee and the Publican," said Dr. Pontius, bringing out the lesson that thankfulness, that one is not like the poverty stricken, that one is not in social degradation and that the nation is not like blood-stained Spain, or under the dictatorship as Italy, this is not the true gratitude of Christ, or of the Publican. "The Christian prayer," said Dr. Pontius "is to thank God for all blessings we enjoy as individuals or as a nation, but also to ask God to give these same blessings to all. Great responsibility is ours as Christians, socially, educationally, politically and religiously and in reverence we should ask God to be merciful giving us light and power, Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet, lest we forget, lest we forget."

Rev. Harry Lothian, pastor of the Northminster church presided during the service, which was filled with praise and Thanksgiving, with special music by the choir, under the direction of P. Bracewell.

The order of exercises was as follows: Invocation, Rev. Glen J. Schillerstein. Hymn, Congregational singing. Responsive reading, Psalm 100—W. C. Meeker.

Crane Lake Ducks In Limelight; May Cause Court Suit

State Feeds Them, Lucky Chicagoans Shoot 'em; U. S. Investigators

The ducks up Crane Lake way don't know it, but they are causing a controversy between state and federal conservation authorities that threatens to wind up in court.

Crane Lake in the Illinois river bottom, on the west side of Mason county, is the only place along the river where ducks are being fed.

About one thousand acres of the area is under leasing to the state as a game preserve, where feeding operations may be carried on without violation of federal anti-feeding laws. But a duck shooting club controlled by a number of Chicago sportsmen, which leased a portion of its holdings, retains an area of ground highly convenient to the state preserve, where the bombardment of well-fed ducks is reported to have been especially heavy this fall.

Flock to Feeding Grounds

Ducks know where their grub comes from, so they pass up other crumbs along the river and fly down to the state's feeding ground. Then the hunters who are so fortunate as to belong to the adjoining club, cut loose with a barrage and have much fun.

Controversy over this situation resulted yesterday in federal agents insisting that conspiracy charges be brought in federal court at Springfield by U. S. District Attorney Henry C. Doyle, unless a satisfactory agreement can be worked out with C. F. Thompson, director of the state department of conservation.

The district attorney denied that any such demands had been made or that he had conferred with federal game agents. However, it was learned that he held several such conferences and that yesterday he and the federal agents conferred with Governor Horner in an effort to reach an understanding.

It was reported in Springfield that if the situation is not clarified federal game agents will push their demands that conspiracy charges be brought against Director Thompson and a number of Chicago sportsmen.

Case Before Governor

George Tonkin of Winona, Minn., and Jacob Lemm and John Martin of Peoria, federal wild game inspectors, conferred yesterday with Governor Horner but no decision was announced.

"It is a matter of interpretation of the federal game laws," U. S. Attorney Doyle said, "who expect to reach an agreement with the state regarding the matter."

The Crane Lake vicinity has been for years one of the best duck hunting spots in the state. For years ducks were fed there and Chicago sportsmen, who controlled the 2,6
